

Digging British Bayonets
From Earth In New York

DIGGING FOR RELICS.

New York, April 2.—Relics of the revolution—brass buttons, bayonets and clasps worn by King George's soldiers—have been discovered in the upper section of Manhattan. The relics were collected by Messrs. R. P. Bolton and W. L. Calver, amateur antiquarians who live in the vicinity of the Washington Heights battle field.

Although it is now more than 120 years since the alien troops occupied the heights, all the relics found are in an excellent state of preservation. The various buttons found by the excavators when cleaned show the coats of arms and other insignia of the regiments to which those who wore them belonged.

Dr. Ira W. Collins, the Eminent Osteopath, Elected President of the National Osteopathic Association.

Washington, D. C. The National Osteopathic Association yesterday elected Dr. Ira W. Collins, of El Paso, Texas, president.

This great organization is composed of the leaders of the osteopathic profession.

Before a member is eligible, they must be both a graduate of some college and a graduate of Dr. A. T. Still's great osteopathic university of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo.

This association will divorce osteopathy from the medical profession and have laws passed in each state allowing all graduates of Dr. A. T. Still's school to register their diplomas and practice in any state in the union.

All practitioners who accept a medical license or give any drugs will not be allowed to practice osteopathy nor be considered a member of the osteopathic profession from now on.

This has no connection with one known as A. O. A.

The association by Dr. Bailey, a member of the Texas Medical board, in a paper called the Physician, in Chicago, that the osteopaths who took examinations before the board were far in advance of the medical students, has excited the ire of the entire medical profession, as it shows how much lower is the professional educational standard of the medical profession than that of the osteopaths and most of them now would like a divorce.

One object of the National Osteopathic association is to elevate the standard of osteopathic education still higher.

ISSUE IN TEXAS

of the anti-prohibitionists. Poindexter has long been the personal and political friend of Bailey.

Bailey is not lacking in gratitude towards the men who befriended him in the time of his political needs. He therefore picked upon Poindexter as his choice for governor, and the word went out to his friends to rally to his support.

Colquitt is known to have calculated on the support of the bulk of the Bailey men. While he took no side one way or the other in the Bailey controversy at the time it was at its height, he was generally looked upon as being opposed to the senator. He now says that this is not so. He has declared recently from the stump that he believes Mr. Bailey did no moral wrong, and that he has great admiration for him, etc., etc. Seeing the headway that Poindexter is making in the matter of receiving the endorsement and plaudits of the Bailey people, Mr. Colquitt is now doing his utmost to divide that vote.

Bailey After Davidson's Scarp. The chief cause of Bailey's quiet activity on behalf of Poindexter's candidacy is his desire to see R. V. Davidson, former attorney general, defeated for the office of governor. Mr. Davidson was the man who uncovered the documentary evidence and much of the testimony showing senator Bailey's relations with Mr. Pierce and the big oil concerns. He brought these facts to light as an incident of his work in preparing the case of the state of Texas against the Waters-Pierce oil company for alleged violations of the anti-trust laws and not with any original intention of causing Bailey's political downfall.

However, Bailey looked upon him as his personal and political enemy, for what he had done, and it has been war to the knife between them ever since. Bailey declared that Davidson should never hold another public office, but the latter was reelected attorney general by a large majority despite that threat.

Anti-Bailey Candidates. Davidson has been a consistent anti-prohibitionist, but he favors local option, and is not opposed to the submission of the question of state-wide prohibition if it is the will of the legislature. He has a good record for law enforcement, and it is claimed by his chief supporters that he will receive the vote of the conservative business element of the state, irrespective of the prohibition question.

Come Johnson, of Tyler, is another bitter political enemy of senator Bailey, who is making the race for the Democratic nomination of governor. Johnson is running strictly on the state-wide prohibition platform. He has a large following, and if the Baileyism issue can be kept in the background, his chances of success are believed to be about as good as any of the other candidates in the race.

It is known that Davidson invites the making of Baileyism as the paramount issue of the campaign, although he thinks that there are other more important and material questions, which should receive the attention of the people. He is willing, however, that another test should be made of the sentiment of the people towards the things which Bailey is alleged to stand for in his public career.

It is quite generally conceded that if Baileyism is to be made the chief issue, the contest will narrow down to two candidates, Poindexter and Davidson.

Bailey Writes Letter.

Quinn, Tex., April 2.—O. B. Colquitt, candidate for governor and supporter of the anti-prohibition cause, today said he had not read senator Bailey's letter to W. H. Dougherty and which it is claimed endorses W. A. Poindexter's candidacy. Colquitt declared that as a friend of Bailey, he was opposed to dragging the latter into the campaign.

Bailey Endorses Poindexter.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Senator Bailey was asked today whether his letter to W. H. Dougherty, read at the Gainesville meeting yesterday afternoon, was meant to be a definite endorsement of W. A. Poindexter in the gubernatorial race.

The senator said: "The letter speaks for itself," and refused to say more regarding the situation.
